

A LETTER from Lt. G. W. Corbett, Co. E, 18th Regiment N. C. T., dated Fort Monroe, May 15th, 1864, and addressed to his brother, gives the following list of the officers of that Regiment then with Lt. Corbett at Fort Monroe...

It is noticeable that during the present campaign, few battles take place on Sunday. The enemy has been thrashed into some respect for the day, and we think that General Lee is anxious to avoid any violation of its solemn stillness and repose.

It is hardly respect for the day that actuates our enemies, but most probably repeated disaster on that day have led them to regard it as unlucky. Such we think is the sentiment with the private soldiers, whatever feelings the officers may have upon the subject.

The regular Republicans—the Blacks of the Administration stripe—have nominated ABRAHAM LINCOLN and ANDREW JOHNSON for President and Vice-President of the United States.

The radical Republicans—the Blacks with a streak of Red in them have nominated J. C. FRENCH and JOHN COCHRAN.

Who the Democrats or Conservatives, to meet at Chicago, may nominate remains to be seen. Without military successes of the most decisive character for the Confederacy, or without a forcible movement at the North, LINCOLN and JOHNSON have the track at all odds.

FARMOST will hardly carry a large vote except among the ultra radicals of the Northwest. His New York associate may bring a portion of the b'boy element to his support, but not sufficient to influence the result in any way.

It is evident that, so far as the Northern elections are concerned, everything almost depends upon the progress of the military campaigns in Virginia and Georgia. The Conservatives or Democrats may nominate McCLELLAN or any other leader, but they cannot elect him, even with the assistance of FARMOST, unless there be such a decided tendency in military affairs as will strongly incline the Northern mind to peace.

Westover, on the James River, to which General Grant is said to have moved his base is some distance East of Malvern Hill and about a mile farther down the James than Harris's Landing, where McCLELLAN found shelter, and from which he contrived to carry off his beaten hosts in 1862.

Grant has been trying to steal a march on us on the South side, and Petersburg has more than once been in danger. The enemy got dangerously close to it on Wednesday night, and there is every reason to suppose that heavy fighting has been going on since.

Lieutenant General DONALD POLK was killed by a cannon ball on the 14th instant, near Marietta, Georgia. He was about 54 years of age, a native of Raleigh North Carolina, a graduate of West Point, but after his graduation he entered the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church, of which he was a bishop when the present war broke out.

Contemplated Raid on Augusta. On Monday last Col. Geo. W. RAINS, commanding at Augusta, Ga., issued the following address to the community. Augusta is a point of great importance in view of the large government establishments there for the manufacture of ordnance, ammunition and military equipments generally.

It would appear as though General Grant intended to transfer his forces to the South Side of the James River. At any rate he has changed his base from York to the James, and is getting opposite to Bermuda Hundred, where BUTLER is already entrenched.

He will find as many difficulties on the South Side as on the North side, though it can hardly be denied that he will be in a position to subject us to a good deal of loss and inconvenience by his harassing attacks upon our railroad communications.

By hook or by crook, ABRAHAM LINCOLN is bound to be re-elected President of the Northern States. That, like his nomination at Baltimore, is a foregone conclusion. He is far from being a great man, but whatever else may be thought about him, he has shown himself to be a "smart" man in his own way.

The Convention that re-nominated him, undoubtedly Southern States were fictitiously represented, and in the electoral college that will choose the President, we should not wonder if the vote of North Carolina, South Carolina, Arkansas, Louisiana and other Southern States should be counted for ABRAHAM LINCOLN and ANDREW JOHNSON.

The regular Republicans—the Blacks of the Administration stripe—have nominated ABRAHAM LINCOLN and ANDREW JOHNSON for President and Vice-President of the United States. The radical Republicans—the Blacks with a streak of Red in them have nominated J. C. FRENCH and JOHN COCHRAN.

Who the Democrats or Conservatives, to meet at Chicago, may nominate remains to be seen. Without military successes of the most decisive character for the Confederacy, or without a forcible movement at the North, LINCOLN and JOHNSON have the track at all odds.

FARMOST will hardly carry a large vote except among the ultra radicals of the Northwest. His New York associate may bring a portion of the b'boy element to his support, but not sufficient to influence the result in any way.

It is evident that, so far as the Northern elections are concerned, everything almost depends upon the progress of the military campaigns in Virginia and Georgia. The Conservatives or Democrats may nominate McCLELLAN or any other leader, but they cannot elect him, even with the assistance of FARMOST, unless there be such a decided tendency in military affairs as will strongly incline the Northern mind to peace.

Westover, on the James River, to which General Grant is said to have moved his base is some distance East of Malvern Hill and about a mile farther down the James than Harris's Landing, where McCLELLAN found shelter, and from which he contrived to carry off his beaten hosts in 1862.

Grant has been trying to steal a march on us on the South side, and Petersburg has more than once been in danger. The enemy got dangerously close to it on Wednesday night, and there is every reason to suppose that heavy fighting has been going on since.

Lieutenant General DONALD POLK was killed by a cannon ball on the 14th instant, near Marietta, Georgia. He was about 54 years of age, a native of Raleigh North Carolina, a graduate of West Point, but after his graduation he entered the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church, of which he was a bishop when the present war broke out.

Being entrusted by the War Department with the command of this Post, it is necessary that I should take such measures as will best secure its defence. The importance of this point to the Confederacy is known as well to the Northern Government and in Europe as it is to yourselves.

The enemy will endeavor to destroy the public interests here, if he conceives it to be a profitable enterprise, and in so making the preliminary arrangements to this end by a concentration of his troops, vessels and supplies at Hilton Head.

I have freely given the above facts to the community, in order that they may perceive the necessity for bringing out our whole energies, and that it may be prepared for the stringent measures it will become necessary to take, as soon as I shall receive information from Major General Jones, Commanding the Department, that the enemy have commenced a raid for the interior.

Should the enemy arrive on the opposite bank of the river in spite of our efforts to prevent it, I trust the inhabitants will not be unduly alarmed, as it is quite probable, that being a raiding party it may be destitute of artillery, at all events, only very light pieces could accompany such a force.

The following is a list of casualties in Company C, 8th N. C. Regiment from the 15th of May to the 9th of June, 1864, inclusive. You will please publish in the Journal for the benefit of the friends of the fallen.

For the Journal. The following is a list of casualties in Company C, 8th N. C. Regiment from the 15th of May to the 9th of June, 1864, inclusive. You will please publish in the Journal for the benefit of the friends of the fallen.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

FROM THE FRONT.—THE ENEMY IN FORCE. The enemy are determined to annoy our people with all the means and appliances at their command, if they cannot effect their object by direct military operations.

REPORTS OF THE PRESS. THE FIGHTING ABOUT PETERSBURG. PETERSBURG, June 17th, 1864. The assault of the Yankees on Battery 16 last evening was handsomely repulsed by Bushrod Johnson's division.

THE FIGHTING ABOUT PETERSBURG. PETERSBURG, June 17th, 1864. The assault of the Yankees on Battery 16 last evening was handsomely repulsed by Bushrod Johnson's division.

THE FIGHTING ABOUT PETERSBURG. PETERSBURG, June 17th, 1864. The assault of the Yankees on Battery 16 last evening was handsomely repulsed by Bushrod Johnson's division.

THE FIGHTING ABOUT PETERSBURG. PETERSBURG, June 17th, 1864. The assault of the Yankees on Battery 16 last evening was handsomely repulsed by Bushrod Johnson's division.

THE FIGHTING ABOUT PETERSBURG. PETERSBURG, June 17th, 1864. The assault of the Yankees on Battery 16 last evening was handsomely repulsed by Bushrod Johnson's division.

THE FIGHTING ABOUT PETERSBURG. PETERSBURG, June 17th, 1864. The assault of the Yankees on Battery 16 last evening was handsomely repulsed by Bushrod Johnson's division.

THE FIGHTING ABOUT PETERSBURG. PETERSBURG, June 17th, 1864. The assault of the Yankees on Battery 16 last evening was handsomely repulsed by Bushrod Johnson's division.

THE FIGHTING ABOUT PETERSBURG. PETERSBURG, June 17th, 1864. The assault of the Yankees on Battery 16 last evening was handsomely repulsed by Bushrod Johnson's division.

THE FIGHTING ABOUT PETERSBURG. PETERSBURG, June 17th, 1864. The assault of the Yankees on Battery 16 last evening was handsomely repulsed by Bushrod Johnson's division.

THE FIGHTING ABOUT PETERSBURG. PETERSBURG, June 17th, 1864. The assault of the Yankees on Battery 16 last evening was handsomely repulsed by Bushrod Johnson's division.